

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

SKETCH OF
THE FIELD SERVICES
OF THE
RIFLE BRIGADE,
FROM ITS FORMATION, TO THE BATTLE OF WATERLOO.
BY LIEUT.-COLONEL LEACH, C.B.

THIS regiment was gazetted on the 25th of August, 1800, as the 95th Rifle Corps; but, some little time previous to this, it was considered as an experimental corps; and in its infancy it accompanied the expedition to Ferrol, commanded by Sir James Pulteney.

It was next engaged in the battle of Copenhagen, fought between the British fleet, under Lord Nelson, and the Danish fleet and batteries. In this sanguinary conflict the Rifle Corps lost many of its members.

In 1805, the corps composed a part of the force sent to Germany to co-operate with some of the continental troops against the French; but the expedition returned to England after a short absence, having effected nothing very material.

In the same year a second battalion was added to the 95th Rifle Corps.

In 1806, three companies of the second battalion were sent to South America, with the expedition commanded by Sir Samuel Achmuty; and five companies of the first battalion went with the expedition against Buenos Ayres, commanded by General Whitelock.

The corps was employed in the siege and storming of Monte Video, and it was engaged likewise in a warm action near Colonia, and in other affairs of minor importance.

Sir Samuel Achmuty mentioned them in very handsome terms several times.

It was engaged again in a sharp action with the Spanish troops sent out from Buenos Ayres to check the British advanced guard, which was formed by five companies of the first battalion of the Rifle Corps, and some light companies.

The advanced guard drove the Spaniards before them in gallant style, charging and capturing some field artillery from them.

In the attack on the city of Buenos Ayres, the Rifle Corps sustained a very severe loss in both officers and men. Eight companies of the regiment were present on that occasion; the remainder of the two battalions being employed the same year (1807) in the expedition to Denmark, under Lord Cathcart. The whole of the Danish fleet was taken possession of and brought to England, and a considerable part of the Capital was destroyed by bombardment.

In the spring of 1808 a part of the first battalion of the regiment was sent with an expedition to Sweden, commanded by Sir John Moore; but, in consequence of some misunderstanding between the British commander and the Swedish government, the troops did not disembark.

The same summer four hundred men of the second battalion accompanied the expedition to Portugal, commanded by Sir Arthur Wellesley; and its first encounter with the French was near Obidos. Lieutenant Bunbury was killed; and he was the first British officer that fell in the Peninsular war.

The French had a considerable quantity of cattle, which were turned out to graze near the ramparts, under the protection of the guns. Lord Wellington's intention being to reduce the place by famine, some companies of the Rifle Corps were frequently employed to approach as near as possible to the walls, and to endeavour to shoot the cattle. This always brought a cannonade on them.

The first battalion of the corps, together with a part of the second and third, were soon afterwards engaged in the battle of Fuentes d'Onoro, in which Massena's army was completely beaten and obliged to abandon its design of raising the blockade of Almeida. The regularity and steadiness evinced by the light division, when ordered to fall back in squares, during the battle of Fuentes d'Onoro, over a plain, followed by a large force of French cavalry, and heavily cannonaded at the same time, is still fresh in the recollection of some few who were present on that day.

When Lord Wellington's army was falling back from the position near Fuente Guinaldo, towards Soito, in consequence of the very superior numbers brought against it by Marshal Marmont, the Rifle Corps had a brush with some French chasseurs; a part of whom dismounted and attacked the British rear guard as light infantry. They were soon checked, and, during the remainder of that day, kept at a more respectful distance.

A short time previous to this affair, five companies of the third battalion of the regiment, under the command of Lieutenant Colonel Andrew Barnard, joined the light division from Cadiz.

Next followed the siege and storming of Ciudad Rodrigo, in which the Rifle Corps had its full share.

A detachment of the corps (together with detachments from the other regiments of the light division) was employed in the assault of an outwork near Ciudad Rodrigo. Lieutenant Colonel Colbourne, of the 52nd regiment, commanded this party, which carried the works very gallantly and with great rapidity. This took place the first night of the investment of the fortress.

During the siege and storming of Badajoz, the three battalions of the regiment sustained an exceedingly heavy loss in officers and men. A detachment of the corps was also employed in the assault of Fort Piccurina, an outwork of Badajoz.

In the action which took place near Castrejon, the regiment again encountered the enemy. On this occasion the fourth and light divisions, together with several regiments of cavalry, and some horse artillery, were, for a length of time, under a very heavy cannonade. Several chases of cavalry took place, and some of the riflemen and light infantry were warmly engaged. Whilst this force was in the act of falling back over the plains to reach a position on the opposite bank of the Guarena, it was closely followed by the mass of Marmont's army, which, with vastly superior numbers, threatened to crush and overwhelm their opponents. The retreat to the river was, however, effected in beautiful order, and the British forced it under a cannonade from the heights which overlook it. The heat was intense to a degree; and the troops being unable to procure a drop of water to quench their intolerable thirst, until they reached the river, many (particularly of the Portuguese) expired for want of it; and many others fell by the roadside, and, consequently, were made prisoners by the enemy's cavalry, which pressed on with all haste in the track of the British.

On the day following, the Rifle Corps was again briskly cannonaded during the march of the light division along the Guarena, in a parallel line with the French; both armies directing their steps towards the river Tormes.

The light division was engaged, but slightly, towards evening, in the battle of Salamanca. Four divisions of the army; viz., 3rd, 4th, 5th, and 6th, with some regiments of cavalry, principally gained this glorious victory. The 2nd division was absent in the south of Portugal, under Sir Rowland Hill's command; the 1st and light divisions towards the left of the British position; and the 7th division not seriously engaged.

The Rifle Corps was next engaged with Marshal Soult's advanced guard, previous to, and during, the passage of the river Huebra, near San Munos, by the light division, which formed the rear guard during the retreat of the British army from Salamanca to Ciudad Rodrigo, in November, 1812, after the two wings of Lord Wellington's army had formed a junction at Salamanca,—one wing from before Burgos, the other from Madrid.

A company of the second battalion of the regiment was sent from Cadiz with the little expedition to Tarifa, and it was actively engaged in all the operations which took place, and in the defence of the town when it was stormed by the French. The enemy suffered a heavy loss, and were so completely beaten as to be obliged to raise the siege, and to make a hasty retreat from before the place.

In the retreat of the French from before Cadiz, after they had been compelled to raise the siege in consequence of the battle of Salamanca, a part of the second battalion of the Rifle Corps was engaged with their rear guard near Seville, and it was mentioned in complimentary terms by the officer commanding on that occasion.

In the defence of the bridge of Aranjuez, a part of the second battalion aided materially, by its well-directed fire, in stopping the enemy in his attempt at passing.

During the remainder of the war in the Peninsula, the first battalion consisted of six companies only; its losses on various occasions having so reduced its ranks (notwithstanding reinforcements frequently sent out from England) that six companies were all that could be kept effective. The second battalion had also six companies, and the third battalion five: all of those were in the light division. The remainder of the corps was at its dépôt, at Shorncliffe, in Kent, and was composed of a few worn-out men and recruits.

Near the village of San Millan, on the north bank of the Ebro, the three battalions of the regiment took a very prominent part in the attack and complete defeat of a French division of infantry, which was surprised in mid-day by the light division. The enemy lost many in killed, wounded, and prisoners, and the greater part of their baggage was captured. Some hundreds sought refuge in the mountains.

Three days afterwards, the three battalions were warmly engaged in the glorious battle of Vittoria. The French lost the whole of their baggage and their military chest, one hundred and fifty-one pieces of artillery, many prisoners, and many killed and wounded. This signal defeat obliged the French to retreat at once into their own country. During the 23rd and 24th of June, the first and third battalions of the Rifle Corps were constantly in close pursuit of the French rear guard, and frequently engaged. On the latter day they aided in capturing a howitzer, not far from Pampluna. From the heights of Santa Barbara, in the Pyrennees, near the town of Vera, the first battalion next drove the French pickets, whilst, at the same moment, the 43rd regiment was engaged amongst the enclosures near that town.

The corps was engaged again near the bridge of Yanci, on the Bidassoa, with Soult's rear guard, which was in full retreat for the passes of Vera and Echelar, after the brilliant victory obtained by the right wing of the British army, a few days before, near Pampluna. A destructive fire, from the riflemen of the light division, threw the fugitives into great disorder; many threw away their arms and knapsacks, and scrambled up the face of a rough mountain on the right bank of the Bidassoa, leaving a quantity of baggage in the hands of their pursuers. A regiment of French lancers, which was in the enemy's rear guard, fared but badly on this occasion; for, being unable to retaliate with their lances in the rough and mountainous road which runs parallel with the Bidassoa, they got into a sad plight, and, throwing away their lances, and abandoning many of their horses, sought refuge in the mountains.

On the following day, the first and third battalions of the regiment attacked and drove from one of the rocky mountains in the Pyrennees, several battalions of French infantry, which were obliged to seek refuge in France without delay. The 43rd regiment supported the riflemen in this attack.

A detachment of the Rifle Corps, under the command of a subaltern, was sent to take a part in the storming of San Sebastian, the light division having received orders to send some men from each of its regiments. This detachment suffered very severely, in common with the other troops employed in that bloody and obstinately contested business. The same day on which the assault of San Sebastian took place, a large French force forded the Bidassoa, near Vera, which brought it in contact with the light division. The second battalion of the Rifle Corps was a good deal engaged in and about the churchyard and outbuildings of Vera; and the gallant and obstinate defence which was made, the same night, by two companies of the second battalion at the bridge, is particularly deserving of being recorded. This small force could not stop some thousand Frenchmen, but it caused them a terrible loss.

About this period all the effective men that could be scraped together at the dépôt in England were sent to Belgium, and constituted a part of the force under Sir Thomas Graham, that officer having been replaced in the Peninsular army by Sir John Hope. This detachment of the corps (amounting to three companies) was warmly engaged in an action with the French at Merxem, in the vicinity of Antwerp; and it was likewise engaged in affairs of lesser importance in that country.

The three battalions were next engaged in a desperate attack made by the light division on a formidable entrenched position in the pass of Vera. The third battalion of the regiment commenced the business of the day by driving from a mountain an advanced party of the French, and this was followed by a general advance of the light division against the entrenched position. After a sharp conflict the enemy was driven from his strong ground; and the second brigade of the light division, which Colonel Colbourne, of the 52nd regiment, commanded on that day (composed of the 52nd regiment, the second battalion of the Rifle Corps, and the first Portuguese light infantry), suffered very severely, and exhibited great gallantry and good conduct in forcing the different entrenchments with the bayonet.

A few weeks after this, the three battalions of the corps had an ample share in the battle of the Nivelle; on which day the British army was established on the soil of France, and Marshal Soult was obliged to retreat to a strong entrenched camp near Bayonne.

In a close reconnoissance, made by the left wing of the army, under Sir John Hope's command, on the French entrenched camp near Bayonne, the Rifle Corps was soon afterwards engaged, as likewise in several minor affairs of posts, between Arcanguez and Bayonne.

In the battles of the Nive, which lasted five days, and consisted of different attacks on various points of our extended line of defence, the Rifle Corps had its share.

The second and third battalions were in the battle of Orthes; the first battalion, having been sent a short time before to St. Jean de Luz to get its new clothing, was unavoidably prevented from taking a share in that action, which threw additional lustre on the British arms.

The three battalions of the regiment were shortly afterwards very hotly engaged at Tarbes, on the Adour, driving the enemy from a ridge of formidable heights, and inflicting on them a heavy loss in an extremely short space of time. Eleven officers of the corps were killed and wounded in this short but sharp action.

In following the French rear-guard towards Toulouse, the third battalion had an affair near the village of Tournfeuille.

In the battle of Toulouse, which followed shortly afterwards, the three battalions of the corps were engaged. This battle terminated the war in the Peninsula, which commenced (as far as the British army was concerned) on the 1st day of August, 1808, and ended on the 10th of April, 1814.

On the return of the army from Bordeaux to England, five companies of the third battalion were sent with the expedition against New Orleans, in the various operations against which place it suffered very severely indeed. The first and second battalions were also under orders to embark for America early in the ensuing spring, but Napoleon's escape from Elba changed their destination to Flanders.

The gallantry displayed by a company of the third battalion, commanded by Captain Hallen, which formed the advance picket on the first night, the troops, under Sir John Keane, landed on the banks of the Mississippi (when it was vigorously attacked by an overwhelming body of Americans); and the obstinacy with which this little band defended the post entrusted to their charge, should be recorded as an affair of posts but rarely equalled, and never surpassed in devoted bravery.

Had the expedition terminated more favourably, it is presumed that the brave commander of that company would not have gone unrewarded.

The first battalion of the corps being in Sir Thomas Picton's division, was engaged in the battle of Quatre Bras.

The first and second battalions, as well as that part of the third which was not with the New Orleans expedition, were hotly engaged throughout the glorious day of Waterloo. Their losses were exceedingly severe.

From the formation of the regiment in 1800 to the Day of Waterloo, it appears it has been engaged with the enemy, as follows:—

In one great naval battle (Copenhagen).

In three sieges and storms (Monte Video, Ciudad Rodrigo, and Badajoz).

In the attack of Buenos Ayres, under General Whitelock.

In the assault of the American lines at New Orleans.

A detachment sent to assist in the defence of Tarifa.

A detachment sent to assist in the storming of San Sebastian.

In eleven hotly contested actions not termed general ones.

In thirteen general actions.

In the battle of Quatre Bras, which was fought principally by Sir Thomas Picton's division, and is not termed a general action.

And in upwards of forty minor actions, affairs of posts, reconnoissances, &c., &c., many of which were very severe.

With the exception of the expedition to Ferrol, and the battle of Copenhagen, under Lord Nelson, the whole of the above-mentioned services were performed between the early part of the year 1807, and the month of June, 1815, a period of but little more than eight years.

In conclusion, it should be remarked, that although most of the effective men of the whole corps were sent to the Peninsula, and that the three battalions were in the field, neither of them could be supplied with reinforcements from the dépôt in sufficient numbers to fill up their constant losses.

It has already been stated, that in the spring of 1810 the first battalion was reduced from ten to eight companies; and after the sieges and storms of Ciudad Rodrigo and Badajoz, it was reduced to six companies; from which period, up to and including the battles of Quatre Bras and Waterloo, it consisted of only that number.

The second battalion could not either be furnished with men sufficiently fast to keep it up to more than six companies; and the third battalion had but five companies in the Peninsula.

The recruiting at home was attended with as much success as that of other regiments, and more so than that of most. The best proof of it is, that on the return of the two battalions from Corunna and Vigo, in January, 1809, a third battalion was formed in a few days by volunteers from various militia regiments; and the number of men obtained, in that extremely short space of time, exceeded very considerably one thousand.

If, then, it is asked how came it to pass that the three battalions could not be kept up to their proper complement in the field, the answer is obvious, and will be found in the perusal of the foregoing sketch of its services.

It will there be seen, that it was not only employed in general actions, sieges, and storms, in common with regiments of the line; but that the very numerous affairs (as they are termed) in which, as a matter of course, it was constantly engaged, owing to the peculiar nature of its service, caused an unceasing drain on its strength, from which the regiments of the line were comparatively exempt.

The best test of the correctness of this assertion would be found in the returns of officers and soldiers of the 95th Rifle Corps killed and wounded in that manner.

In looking over the returns in the Gazette of the losses sustained by different regiments in various battles, those who are not properly informed on the subject would very naturally conclude that the battalions of the Rifle Corps amounted to ten companies each in the field, and would judge of their losses accordingly, whereas a very false estimate would thus be made.

For example:—at the sieges and storms of Ciudad Rodrigo and Badajoz, instead of three battalions, of ten companies each, there were only fifteen altogether; viz., eight of the first, two of the second, and five of the third; and in every action which took place from that time, up to the termination of the Peninsular war at Toulouse, there were but seventeen companies in that country; that is, only two companies more than one complete battalion and a half.

At Waterloo there were but fourteen companies of the corps; viz., six of the first, six of the second, and two of the third battalion; yet, persons uninformed on the subject would suppose, on seeing the returns of killed and wounded after different actions, that the three battalions consisted (like those of other regiments) of ten companies each, having thirty captains, sixty first-lieutenants, and thirty second-lieutenants, with field-officers and adjutants in proportion. This supposition would, indeed, be most erroneous, as not more than half that number were in the field.

In looking, therefore, at the losses of each battalion, due regard should be paid to those facts; and it should be borne in mind, that a battalion, composed of five companies, losing fifty men, is tantamount to one of ten companies losing one hundred.

I regret exceedingly that I am not in possession of returns of the losses sustained by my old corps in its numerous actions with the enemy, and by sickness. Such a document would have, perhaps, but few (if any) parallels in the service; and it would be seen, moreover, that the Peninsular army had other formidable enemies to contend with besides the sword, in the form of pestilential fevers, agues, &c. &c.

Although many pleasurable feelings have been experienced, by thus calling to mind occurrences long since passed, and which are, in all probability, nearly effaced from the memory of most, those feelings are not unalloyed by reflecting, how very, very few, now remain of those who participated with me in those spirit stirring scenes.

THE ROYAL NAVAL, MILITARY, AND EAST INDIA LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY.

Bankers—Messrs. Coutts and Co., 59, Strand.
Physicians—Sir Charles Ferguson Forbes, M.D., K.C.H., F.L.S.
Counsel—J. Messure, Esq., 4, Serle street, Lincoln's-inn-fields.
Solicitor—Stephen Garrard, Esq., 13, Suffolk-street, Pall-Mall East.
Actuary—John Finlaison, Esq., the Government Calculator, and President of the Institute of Actuaries.

ASSURANCES ARE GRANTED upon the lives of persons in every profession and station in life, and for every part of the world, with the exception of the Western Coast of Africa within the Tropics.

The Rates of Premiums are constructed upon sound principles with reference to every Colony, and, by payment of a moderate addition to the Home Premium, in case of increase of risk, persons assured in this office may change from one climate to another, without forfeiting their Policies.

FOUR-FIFTHS of the PROFITS are divided amongst the Assured.

The circumstances of the Society, on the occasion of the Second Septennial Division of Profits, in the present year, 1851, have warranted the apportionment of a very Liberal Bonus.

The additions to various Policies are shown in the following examples:—

| Age when Assured. | Policy effected in | Sum Assured  | Total Additions in 1851. |                                                         |

THE ROYAL NAVAL, MILITARY, AND EAST INDIA LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY.

Bankers—Messrs. Coutts and Co., 59, Strand.

Physician—Sir Charles Fergusson Forbes, M.D., K.C.H., F.L.S.

Counsel—J. Measure, Esq., 4, Serle street, Lincoln's-inn-fields.

Solicitor—Stephen Garrard, Esq., 13, Suffolk-street, Pall-Mall East.

Actuary—John Finlaison, Esq., the Government Calculator, and President of the Institute of Actuaries.

ASSURANCES ARE GRANTED upon the lives of persons in every profession and station in life, and for every part of the world, with the exception of the Western Coast of Africa within the Tropics.

The Rates of Premiums are constructed upon sound principles with reference to every Colony, and, by payment of a moderate addition to the Home Premium, in case of increase of risk, persons assured in this office may change from one climate to another, without forfeiting their Policies.

FOUR-FIFTHS of the PROFITS are divided amongst the Assured.

The circumstances of the Society, on the occasion of the Second Septennial Division of Profits, in the present year, 1851, have warranted the apportionment of a very Liberal Bonus.

The additions to various Policies are shown in the following examples:—

BRITISH ARMY DESPATCH.

HORSE GUARDS,

ORDNANCE,

AND EAST INDIA COMPANY'S MILITARY SERVICE, GAZETTE.

The "BRITISH ARMY DESPATCH" was established upon the ground that the British Army would appreciate and support an Organ exclusively devoted to the Service. SINCE THE COMMENCEMENT OF THE PAPER, IT HAS BEEN THE UNWEARIED CHAMPION OF THE INTERESTS OF THE ARMY; and in conscientiously carrying out this policy, its earlier career was fraught with no ordinary degree of difficulty. Thanks, however, to perseverance, and the warm and cordial support of a large body of influential Officers, the Journal has long since entirely overcome every obstacle which originally surrounded it.

It were needless at this time to enlarge upon its principles, or to dilate upon those merits which have been generally acknowledged. Suffice it that the staff now attached to the paper is composed of Officers and Gentlemen of well-known Military, as well as Literary, attainments. The result is that, by their valuable contributions, by the increased estimation of the Journal in public opinion, by the authentic nature of its information, and by the ready means possessed of ascertaining the earliest official intelligence, the proprietors have pleasure in announcing that the Journal within the last six months has increased in circulation more than at any previous term of its career.

In its arrangement of News no labour is spared to make the "BRITISH ARMY DESPATCH" a record of Military, Fashionable, and General Intelligence. It is published every Friday afternoon, and is forwarded by the post of that evening, containing the Gazette issued from the War-office the same night. It contains a careful digest of Regimental News, including Royal Artillery, Royal Engineers, the Royal Marines, Commissariat and Medical Departments, the Yeomanry Cavalry, and Militia; Naval Intelligence; Original Reviews, of Military and other Works; Indian Military Intelligence; City Article; Railway Shares, &c., &c. In addition, a carefully compiled Table of the Stations of Her Majesty's Army is published monthly.

The policy and object of the BRITISH ARMY DESPATCH is to maintain the interests of the Army; to expose and to contend against the abuses of Ministerial Army Patronage; to support, by every just and honest means, the integrity of the Service, and to advance its welfare. To this end, and to ensure success, we trust in the continuance of that support of the Army which is never withheld from those who honestly, zealously, and indefatigably uphold the cause and interests of the honourable and distinguished profession.

"The practitioner in medicine is much indebted to Mr. Braithwaite, for enabling him, without wading through the voluminous articles of the Quarterlies, or the long speeches of projectors and objectors at the various Societies, to keep up his information as to the progress of improvement in his profession. No man can look over this work without feeling proud of the profession to which he belongs, and of the men who ornament it. Here are 450 closely-printed pages of concentrated information, touching upon 200 subjects, and we dare to affirm that not half a dozen of those pages is without a highly practical suggestion. To reduce ingenuity and hypothesis to practice is peculiar to our country, and in this work it is delightful to see how every new invention, discovery, or suggestion, is weighed as to its applicability to the relief of the suffering patient. With this book in his hand, no man need be ignorant of the improvements of the day. We scarcely know how to select amongst the numerous articles of interest, the most interesting."
—Lancet.

"This publication is undoubtedly one of the best digests of the existing state of medical knowledge of the day; and should be in possession of every medical practitioner who desires to keep up his knowledge with the advancing progress of medical and surgical science. We therefore earnestly recommend it to the consideration of the Profession in this country, on the shelves of whose libraries no more instructive volume could be placed."—British American Journal of Medical and Physical Science.

"We think the editor has shewn a degree of judgment in the selection, arrangement, and condensation of the different articles; and the judicious remarks which he has appended to many of the subjects, will be found highly serviceable to the reader. We hail its appearance with unalloyed satisfaction, and our hearty wishes for its success attend it, because we think it will extend to a wider sphere that utility which is the constant aim of the public journalist, and enable the country practitioner especially to keep pace with the rapid improvements in Medical Science."—London Med. Gazette.

"This is a compact and useful production * * and the volume before us bears witness to the sound judgment of its compiler, who has performed a useful task in a very satisfactory manner."—Med. Times.

"We will only add that the plan is extremely well carried out, and that the undertaking merits the patronage of the profession."—Brit. and For. Med. Review.

"On a former occasion we felt it to be our duty to recommend this really useful work to the notice of our professional brethren, and the appearance of a second number has in no way induced us to alter our opinion. Such a work may be regarded as an addition of great practical value to medical literature. It possesses the additional excellency of being 'got up' in a manner that is highly creditable to the press, and is published at a very moderate price."—Medical Times.

"The publication of Mr. Braithwaite deserves the attention of the practitioner; and we hope it will receive proper encouragement from the profession."—Edinburgh Medical and Surgical Journal.

"We quote from that capital little work, Braithwaite's Retrospect; a work very much wanted in these days of Journalism."—Medico-Chirurgical Review.

"This work increases in interest and utility."—Ibid.

"As the youthful aspirant for a commission in the army hurriedly passes with a glance every column of the newspaper until his gaze is arrested by the magic attraction of the "War-Office Gazette," so with the veteran, who never finds himself in presence of an Army List, without intuitively turning to that particular page whereon is inscribed the names of officers then belonging to the regiment, with which for so many years he was identified. Such is the force of habit, engendered by recollection of the past, that although the old soldier is thoroughly convinced he will there encounter a long array of names appertaining to persons of whose identity he possesses not a particle of knowledge, still will he refer to the number of his own corps, until the volume—as if to spare him further trouble—always opens at the one identical page. Doubtless some degree of satisfaction must be derivable from an occupation so frequently indulged in; but when by accident the scrutinizer lights on an ancient muster roll of by-gone days, in which peradventure he reads his own name among those of the companions of his boyhood, and partakers in many a glorious achievement, but who have long since passed away for ever, the veteran will pour forth anecdotes and reminiscences innumerable, illustrative of adventures encountered, and keenly enjoyed, when in the society of those now slumbering with the dead. Nevertheless, his retrospection—however good his memory—must, in some measure, prove defective, when endeavouring to call to mind each associate of his youth, and if his reminiscence be at fault, a cumbersome set of tomes must be referred to in quest of the required information; and that, possibly without supplying the link, after having undergone the labour of the search. The small volume before us effectually meets such emergency, and obviates the necessity of troublesome enquiry; offering to the Regiment it treats of, a faithful record of all officers who have served in the corps during the last half century. So compact and perfect an enumeration of every man who has held a commission in the 11th Hussars since the year 1800 cannot be otherwise than highly appreciated by the members of that gallant corps, forming, as it does, a valuable accompaniment to Mr. Cannon's Historical Records. The compiler of the work must have devoted considerable time and labour in perfecting his task; and most sincerely do we trust he may meet with the encouragement he so richly deserves. In his opening page, the author observes—"should the present list meet with approval, it is intended to publish other regiments on the same plan;" and that it must succeed, appears to us anything but problematical, since we cannot imagine a more welcome addition to a soldier's library than a record of every officer who served under the same colours with himself during some portion of so long a period as fifty years."—British Army Despatch.

"It is a useful compilation as a matter of reference, and we hope it has received sufficient encouragement to induce the compiler to follow it up with similar lists of other Regiments."—United Service Gazette.

THE PARLIAMENTS OF ENGLAND,
FROM 1st GEORGE I., TO THE PRESENT TIME.

BY HENRY STOOKS SMITH.

LONDON: SIMPKIN, MARSHALL AND CO.

“Mr. Smith had already made some progress in the collection of materials for his new work, before he discovered the existence of an old work of similar design, by Mr. Browne Willis; and it is a singular coincidence, that this work ends just where Mr. Smith's begins. namely, in 1714, the first Parliament of Geo. I. In reference to the labour of such an undertaking, Mr. Willis, in his preface, speaks thus:—

“It is not easy to conceive the vast expenses, pains, and trouble attending searches of this nature; and I wish I could as well continue to support that expense as I have been hitherto free in giving my time and labour to the public. But, as I am now no longer able to go through these charges, I shall only intimate, that, if this collection meets with encouragement, and is attended with any emolument answerable to my past labour, I shall be tempted (notwithstanding my decline of life, loaded with encumbrances of many kinds), and become ambitious to reassume my first undertaking with zeal and cheerfulness. And were these difficulties removed, if I should live to finish the whole of this work, I shall have the satisfaction of having carried it on, and leaving materials for a person hereafter, better qualified to complete it, and offer it to the world in its due perfection.”

“This work was originally published in 1716, at 25s., but has become so rare that it is now marked in catalogues at six guineas.

“Researches of this nature, which cost ‘pains and trouble’ a century ago, we may be sure cost no less now; for, if references have become so far more abundant as to ensure greater completeness and accuracy, yet the labour in finding them out has increased just in proportion. Of Mr. Smith's persevering zeal in the prosecution of inquiry after authentic information, we are enabled to speak from experience; and we know that his correspondence with members of parliament, official persons, and public institutions, has been very extensive. As to the utility of such researches, no publisher of a newspaper, or other record of passing events,—no member of a reading-room, or of any political club, can entertain a doubt; the work will form a permanent depository of collected information, which, without such means of reference, might be sought for scattered in a hundred various directions. Indeed, in a country like ours, where politics form the standing dish of interest in every-day conversation, and where parliamentary elections form the one matter of all-absorbing interest, as often as they occur, it is hardly too much to expect that a work of this kind would recommend itself to every individual, whether voter or candidate, past, present, or expectant. The very fluctuations which have occurred in political party opinion, as indicated by the succession of returns given in the present work, are matters of curiosity in themselves. Take Abingdon, for instance, in the first Vol. before us of the Parliaments of England;—in six contests, between 1747 and 1806, Tories were returned in opposition to Whigs; in three contests, between 1807 and 1830, Whigs were returned in opposition to Tories, and the Whig Member was re-elected without opposition in 1831; yet, the only contest which has taken place since, for the first reformed parliament of 1832, a Tory candidate succeeded against two Whigs, and has been returned without opposition in the three subsequent elections. All these changes are distinctly marked down in the record before us, and the inhabitant of any place three hundred miles from Abingdon, might feel an interest in observing their progress; but, in the lapse of a few years, how many inhabitants of Abingdon itself, without such a refresher to the memory, would have been able to give any account of them.”—Gentleman's Mag.

“This work was begun in 1844; in 1845 the second volume appeared, the two giving an account of all the elections in England and Wales, from 1715, the accession of Geo. I., to the time of publication, with the names of the candidates, and the number of votes recorded for each, when that was ascertainable. The arrangement was by counties, with an alphabetical subdivision of places; and notes were added, though rarely. The work is now completed by the publication of the third volume. It contains the elections in the boroughs disfranchised by the Reform Bill, up to the day of their death; with those of Scotland and Ireland since their respective unions, arranged upon a similar plan. An appendix contains the English and Welsh elections, since the publication of the previous volumes, arranged alphabetically, without reference to counties. It is a useful work to the publicist, and to all persons interested in Parliamentary matters.”—Spectator.

“We hope this neat compilation may be encouraged and completed. It would form an indispensable part of every historical library.”—Quarterly Review.

MR. EAGLAND

Respectfully invites the attention of the Medical Profession to the following Notice of New Trusses and other Apparatus, manufactured by him at his Establishment,

No. 35, BOND STREET, LEEDS.

TEALE'S TRUSSES.

These Trusses, of which Mr. Eagland is the sole manufacturer and proprietor, were suggested by T. P. TEALE, Esq., F.L.S., Surgeon to the Leeds General Infirmary, and have been described by him in "The London Medical Gazette" of Feb. 1st, 1850.

TRUSS FOR INGUINAL HERNIA.

This Truss consists of an elastic girdle of steel, to which is adapted a compress of ivory, or of hard wood, of oblongo-oval form, acted upon by a spiral spring. Its chief advantages consist in the girdle being so formed as to maintain a firm and steady seat upon the pelvis, in the hard pad of oblongo-oval form giving a firm support to the internal ring and inguinal canal, the external ring being left free ; and in the spiral spring directing the pressure perpendicularly upon the part requiring support, and allowing the varied movements of the body to be performed without displacement of the pad. Through the medium of the spiral spring, also, the degree of pressure exercised by the pad admits of being modified.

TRUSS FOR FEMORAL HERNIA.

This Truss, like the former, consists of an elastic girdle of steel, and a hard pad of special form, acted upon by a spiral spring.

The pad is of triangular form, the upper border corresponding in its direction with Poupart's ligament, and the pubic border being parallel with the femoral vessels. The most prominent part of the pad is its upper and pubic portion. The spiral spring, which in this Truss is of a circular form, is attached towards the upper and pubic end of the pad, so as to act more especially on its most prominent part. Its pressure is thus chiefly exercised upon the pubic compartment of the femoral sheath, immediately below Poupart's ligament.

The following Notice of these Trusses, by the Editor of "The London Medical Gazette," is quoted from that Journal of Jan. 3rd, 1851:—

“REMARKS ON TRUSSES.

“Patterns of all kinds of improved trusses have at various times reached us, and we have been repeatedly solicited to give an a priori opinion of their value, either from the theory of their construction, or from the casual inspection of a patient who has worn one. Notwithstanding the numerous improved trusses which have been advertised of late years, including the Soft Pad, the Hard Pad, the Sand Pad, the Moc Main, the Wire Truss, and others, we think that most practitioners still consider it a matter of great difficulty to make a selection.

“The remarks which we are about to make, will, we hope, remove this difficulty.

"In the Journal for Feb. 1st, 1850, we inserted a communication from Mr. T. P. TEALE, Surgeon to the Leeds Infirmary. A truss is there described as manufactured by Mr. EAGLAND, of Bond Street, Leeds, and engravings are also given illustrating the principle of its construction, and its mode of application to inguinal and femoral herniæ. Specimens were at that time sent to us for inspection, but, conformably to the rule we have uniformly adopted, we did not give any recommendatory notice of these trusses, either from the inspection of them, or the reports of others. Their alleged superiority over other hernial bandages, therefore, rested entirely on the statements contained in Mr. Teale's paper.

"One of these trusses was ordered and applied to a case of femoral hernia, to which well constructed trusses of London make had been hitherto applied, but always with the great inconvenience of unequal pressure, and the liability to shift, notwithstanding the use of a thigh strap. In this case Teale's Truss has been worn continuously for eleven months without any thigh strap. The pad has perfectly maintained its position in all the movements of the body, and the spiral spring connected with it has allowed of as much freedom of motion as is compatible with the wearing of any hernial bandage whatever. During a like period, before this truss was worn, a change in the ordinary truss, or some alteration of the pad was required, at least once in three months. The result of the long-wearing of Teale's truss in the case of this patient has been most successful and satisfactory; and we consider it a duty, therefore, to state the fact for the information of our readers.

"The construction and mode of applying this truss are so well described by Mr. Teale in the paper before alluded to, that only a few remarks are required in this place. The pad is a light hollow shell of ivory, adapted in shape to the part upon which the pressure is to be applied—a plan eminently required in the femoral space, to which neither oval, round, nor flat pads can be so adapted as to preserve their position without a thigh strap, or some other incumbrance, such as increased strength in the spring, thus causing undue pressure. The spiral spring prevents the pad from moving with the girdle, and thus allows great freedom of motion without risk. We have here the art of the mechanic united to the anatomical science of the surgeon; and we feel bound to state that Mr. Teale has not in any respect overrated the value of this truss.

"Our readers are no doubt aware that there is a strong esprit de corps among surgical mechanicians. Each metropolitan maker has his favourite truss, with duly endorsed testimonials, &c.; all others are ignored, and we doubt whether a provincial maker has the smallest chance of insinuating a good article into metropolitan practice, owing to the combination of the trade against him. We do not know how it is with Mr. Eagland of Leeds, but we are informed that there is no one in London who makes his trusses, or who will make them, except probably on the disinterested principle of absorbing all the profit. We have made enquiries of one or two makers, and they have said that they "know nothing about it"; or, "it is only Coles's patent truss"; or, "it is an article that a London surgeon would never think of using," &c. &c. Our readers must be fully aware how a good article may thus be kept from their knowledge,—literally burked,—by this sort of pooh, poohing. How many medical men apply to a maker, without having any precise idea of the kind of truss most worthy of selection, and are therefore easily led to select the favourite of the particular shop!

"It is with regret we learn that these Trusses cannot be procured in London, but only from the maker, Mr. THOMAS EAGLAND, of Bond Street, Leeds. We know nothing of Mr. Eagland, excepting through the paper published by Mr. Teale in this Journal; but we have great pleasure in giving, without any knowledge on his part, this strong recommendation of his Trusses, from our own actual observation of their efficiency. We have no doubt that a more extended trial by the profession will confirm this opinion of their value."—London Med. Gazette, Jan. 3rd, 1851.

Note from T. P. TEALE, Esq., F.L.S., F.R.C.S., Surgeon to the Leeds
Infirmity, to MR. EAGLAND.

Dear Sir,—I am very much obliged by the beautiful specimens of Trusses which you have sent me. They are excellent works of art, and fully realize my views on the subject of Trusses.

Believe me, dear Sir, yours very truly,
Mr. EAGLAND. T. P. TEALE.

Testimonial of A. S. TAYLOR, Esq., M.D., F.R.S., Prof. of Medical Jurisprudence and Chemistry in Guy's Hospital.

I consider the Ivory Pad Truss made by Mr. THOMAS EAGLAND, of Leeds, to be a considerable improvement on the Trusses ordinarily used. In one case of femoral hernia under my observation, it has been worn for a considerable period without slipping, or giving rise to that unequal pressure which constitutes a serious objection to other trusses. It has been worn without a thigh strap, and with great comparative comfort by the patient. I can, therefore, confidently recommend this truss to those who are afflicted with hernia.

Cambridge Place, Regent's Park, Dec. 20, 1850.

EAGLAND'S SPINAL SUPPORT.

This apparatus has been found of great value in the treatment of the various forms of curvature of the spine. Its chief recommendations are, its simplicity, lightness, and efficiency. When worn, it is completely concealed by the ordinary dress. For testimony in favour of his "Spinal Support," Mr. Eagland is authorized to refer to many of the first members of the profession, and also to ladies of the highest respectability who have worn it.

EAGLAND'S BANDAGE FOR PROLAPSUS OF THE RECTUM, AND HEMORRHOIDS.

This instrument, consisting of an ivory pad, acted upon by an elliptic spring, was invented by the father of Mr. Eagland, (the late Mr. J. B. Eagland, of Leeds). Its efficiency, in supporting the relaxed coats of the rectum, and the dilated hemorrhoidal veins, has been abundantly proved by the experience, during many years, of several of the most eminent members of the profession.

MR. FREDERICK SALMON, in his PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS ON PROLAPSUS, in reference to this instrument, speaks of it as "the best apparatus he knows of," "which, whilst it affords a support adequate to retain the prolapsus within the sphincter, at the same time yields, from the manner of its construction, to the various positions of the body, so as not to produce any degree of local irritation. Altogether it is a most useful invention."

EAGLAND'S EXTERNAL UTERINE SUPPORT, OR PERINEAL TRUSS.

From the inconvenience and injury produced by internal pessaries, it has become an object of great importance to devise an instrument, which, by external pressure, is capable of preventing the falling down of the womb and vagina.

This object is fully attained by Mr. Eagland's External Uterine Support. This instrument consists of an ivory or box-wood pad, adapted to the size of the perineum and vulva, and acted upon by a spiral spring. It is extensively used both in hospital and in private practice. Mr. Eagland holds testimonials of the highest order in favour of it from many of the first Medical Authorities, metropolitan and provincial.

This instrument with a smaller pad, has been found of great value for compressing the urethra of the male subject in cases of incontinence of urine.

EAGLAND'S KNEE-JOINT EXTENSOR.

This apparatus was first constructed by Mr. Eagland for a patient in the Leeds Infirmary, afflicted with rigid contraction of the knee-joint. It was employed in this case, and numerous others, with perfect success, and to the entire satisfaction of the Surgeons of that Institution.

It consists of a moveable double-inclined plane of metal, so constructed as to admit of elongation both in the leg and thigh-part. This rests upon a horizontal frame of wood, in which provision is also made for lengthening or shortening, so as to meet the requirements of any ordinary case. At the foot of the horizontal frame (and so that the adjustment cannot interfere with the patient) is fixed a powerful screw, on which, by a peculiar arrangement, the foot board of the apparatus rides, by which means extension can be gradually made either in a slight or more powerful degree.

This instrument has been in regular use at the Leeds Infirmary and Dispensary, as well as many other public Institutions, and Mr. Eagland possesses strong testimonials in its favour, from

THE GUTTA PERCHA COMPANY

Have pleasure in drawing the attention of the

Commanding Officers of Regiments TO THE FOLLOWING LETTERS.

The severe and perfectly successful test to which Gutta Percha Soles have been subjected by EIGHT HUNDRED HEALTHY BOYS, who are constantly engaged in gymnastic and other active exercises, both on duty and whilst at play, on the rough gravelled ground, attached to the Greenwich Hospital Schools, affords convincing proof of the durability of Gutta Percha, and its superiority to leather for Shoe Soles.

Gutta Percha being a perfect repellent of wet, and a non-conductor of heat or cold, these Soles keep the feet warm in cold weather; and their use must consequently promote the comfort and health of the wearer.

From the ease with which Gutta Percha Soles can be applied or repaired, they cannot fail to render important service to Regiments during the long marches to which they are subject.

From LIEUT. ROUSE, R.N. Superintendent of the Greenwich
Hospital Schools.

Greenwich Hospital Schools, July 16th, 1850.

I have for the last three years worn Gutta Percha Soles, and from the comfort experienced in the wear generally, particularly in regard to dry feet, and also in durability and consequent economy, I was induced to recommend the Commissioners of Greenwich Hospital to sanction its use in this Establishment, instead of leather soles. It has now been six months in general use here, so that I am, from experience in the wear and tear of Shoes for EIGHT HUNDRED BOYS, able to speak with confidence as to its utility, which in my belief is very great; and I am looking forward to its being the means during the next winter, of preventing CHILBLAINS, from which we have greatly suffered.

I have much pleasure in giving this testimony, and you have my permission to make it as public as you please, in the belief that it cannot but be doing good.

TESTIMONIALS—PATENT GUTTA PERCHA SOLES.

From LIEUT. COL. F. R. BLAKE, 33rd Regiment.

Newcastle-upon-Tyne, July 16th, 1850.

In reply to your letter requesting my opinion with regard to Gutta Percha Soles, I have great pleasure in informing you that I have made particular enquiries on the subject from those Soldiers of the 33rd Regiment, who have worn them during the past year, and they decidedly give the preference to the Gutta Percha Soles, both for comfort and durability. I have also constantly worn them myself, and can therefore speak from my own knowledge of the superior advantages of Gutta Percha Soles.

---

From JOHN TAYLOR GORDON, Esq., M.D., London.

(Heretofore Physician to his late Majesty, and to H.R.H. The Duke of Cambridge, but now retired.)

In reply to your late note of inquiry as to my opinion (after considerable trial) of the Gutta Percha Soles, I have no hesitation in stating that I find them the pleasantest wear imaginable,—more durable than leather, if properly applied, and truly valuable on the score of health, as they preserve the feet from wet and cold—of such importance to all persons of delicate constitution, or advancing in years.

I consider they must be most beneficially adapted for our Sailors and Soldiers, as well as our colonists in Canada, &c.

From JAMES T. O. JOHNSTON, Esq., M.D.,

Surgeon, 33rd Regiment, Berwick-on-Tweed, January 10th, 1850.

Being at all times anxious to increase the comforts, and also preserve by every means the health of the Soldiers under my medical charge, my attention was applied to the subject of Gutta Percha Soles, and I can now state with confidence, from a trial, in some instances of two years, and in others for a shorter period, that they have proved exceedingly useful in preserving the feet from damp and cold, and at the same time being in no way injurious to the general health of the wearer.

This winter (1849-50), all the Soldiers of the 33rd Regiment are supplied with Gutta Percha Soles from the Regimental Stores.

From CAPTAIN SIR JOHN ROSS, R.N.

I have worn Patent Gutta Percha Soles during the last two years, and have found them most valuable for preserving the feet dry and warm. They are very superior to leather, being not only perfectly waterproof, but also more durable and cheaper.

To Sailors—especially those proceeding to the Arctic Regions, Gutta Percha will prove a WARM FRIEND owing to its peculiar power of resisting frost. I shall take care to have a supply, not only of the Soles, but also of the Bowls, Tubing, &c., for my next Voyage.

From COLONEL STARLING, Norwich.

Norwich, June 9th, 1850.

SIR,

I have worn the Gutta Percha soles to my boots and shoes for the last two years, and think them more durable, and in every respect superior to leather soles.

Yours' obediently,

P. STARLING.

PORTLAND PLACE, HULL.

March 28th, 1850.

Gentlemen,

It is impossible to conceive of any thing more injurious or destructive to the health of the community, than the use of leaden pipes for the conveyance of water. The poisonous Salts of Lead thereby communicated, are most insidious and subtle. I hail with gratitude the substitution of Gutta Percha Tubing, I have had the leaden pipe of my own house removed, and supplied by one of Gutta Percha. Nothing can be better. I have also recommended it to others, who have adopted the expedient.

I am respectfully,

Gentlemen,

Your obedient Servant,

J. MURRAY, PH.D.

GUTTA PERCHA HEARING APPARATUS FOR THE DEAF

IN
Churches, Chapels, Lecture Rooms,
ETC.,

The Gutta Percha Company have pleasure in informing the public, that the extraordinary power possessed by their Patent Gutta Percha Tubing for conveying sound, has rendered it available for enabling deaf persons to listen to sermons, lectures, &c.

A Gutta Percha funnel is placed either inside (so as to be completely out of sight of the congregation), or in front of the pulpit,* to which the Tubing is attached, and carried under the wood-work or floor, to the pew in which the deaf person sits. The end of the tube (which is all that appears in sight) is applied to the ear. The softest whisper in the pulpit is distinctly heard in the pew, when the ear is applied to the ivory terminal.

\ Ornamental Funnels are provided suitable for the fronts of the Pulpits.*

GUTTA PERCHA FOR HORSE SHOES

The following letter from DR. GILL, relative to the successful application of Gutta Percha to the feet of Horses will be read with interest.

(Copy.)

Stepney, July 12th, 1850.

Gentlemen,

In answer to yours, respecting my knowledge of the use of Gutta Percha, I may state that I have used it extensively in Surgical cases, and found it exceedingly useful, the facility with which it can be moulded, being of the greatest service in fractures and diseases constantly before my notice.

I am indebted to Dr. Slyman, Coroner, Newtown, Montgomery, for its application to the soles of horses' feet.

Horses are at all times and seasons likely to, as it is termed, pick up stones by which means the feet are frequently severely injured, to prevent this they are sometimes shod in leather, in which instance it is placed between the hoof and shoes and nailed to the foot; now Dr. Slyman's method is as follows,—he cuts a piece of Gutta Percha from a sheet  $\frac{1}{4}$ -inch thick, to the size of the outside of the shoe, he then softens it in hot water, and immediately places it close to the sole of the foot, pressing it with the finger, or small piece of wood, under the edge of the shoe and into the different hollows under the foot, it cools in a few seconds where it will remain without further fastening or trouble, it is then impossible for the horse to injure his foot from treading on flints, or even glass, the protection being so exceedingly strong when cold. The piece may, if you wish it, be removed at night, (leather cannot be) and the feet stopped if desired, cow dung being generally used for that purpose, to keep the feet cool.

In the morning again the same Gutta Percha being softened in hot water, is replaced, as it lasts a long time, and is not one-twentieth part the expense of leather in its wear. So that you see Gutta Percha is as useful to horses' feet as those of human beings.

I am, Gentlemen, yours obediently,

S. L. GILL, M.D.,
Stepney, London.

FOR THE

LINING OF CISTERNS, VATS, &c.

FOR ACIDS, ALKALIES, &c.

IN CHEMICAL AND OTHER WORKS.

The Gutta Percha Company have pleasure in requesting a perusal of the following letters:—

From Messrs. BROWNE & WINGROVE, Gold Refiners.

(Copy.)

30, Wood St. Cheapside, London, 24th Jan. 1850.

Sir, Having had in use for the last three months vessels lined with Gutta Percha for the reception of dilute Nitric Acid, we beg to state that in every respect the Gutta Percha is as good and as firm even as the first day it was used, and so highly satisfied are we of its valuable properties in resisting the action of this description of acid, that it is our intention to adopt it generally for every description of article or vessel to which we can apply it in our process of refining. Before we had fully made up our minds for introducing Gutta Percha into our Works, we submitted it to the severe test of a twelvemonth's trial in strong nitric acid, when the surface of the Gutta Percha was injured, while the interior was sound.

We have not the least doubt of its powers in resisting the action of dilute-nitric acid such as we use, and that it can be extensively and profitably employed by us for this purpose.

We remain Sir, Your's obediently,

To Mr. STATHAM,
Gutta Percha Company.

BROWNE & WINGROVE.

From CHANCE BROTHERS, & Co., Alkali Works, near Birmingham.
Gentlemen,

Having used the Gutta Percha for many months as a lining for vessels and spouts, for containing and conveying Muriatic Acid, we have found it most effectually to resist its action, and can add our testimony to its adaptation to this purpose.

Yours' obediently,

CHANCE BROTHERS, & Co.

From Messrs. NELSON, KNOWLES, & Co., Print Works,

(Copy.)

Tottington, near Bury.

Dear Sir,

In reply to yours, we are using the GUTTA PERCHA as Straps to turn our Dye Vats, Winches, Hydro Extractor, Lathes, &c. We think it a very great improvement on any other kind of strap. A very great consideration is, that when an accident occurs, or you wish to lengthen or shorten a strap, the alteration can be made instantly. We also have tried in stoking on Rollers, through the aqua-fortis when engraving, and find it answer our most sanguine expectations in that respect, being perfectly impervious to the action of the Nitric Acid of the strength required for our purpose.

Your's, very truly,

Mr. SAM. STATHAM,
Gutta Percha Company.

NELSON, KNOWLES & Co.

From Messrs. E. & J. STURGE, Birmingham.

J. & E. Sturge have much pleasure in stating that they have now for a considerable time made use of the Gutta Percha Tubes for the transmission of highly concentrated Hydrochloric Acid, which appears to exert no perceptible action upon them.

GUTTA PERCHA FOR SURGICAL APPLICATIONS.

The Gutta Percha Company have pleasure in drawing attention to the following Letter from

William Bird Herapath, Esq.,
SURGEON TO ST. PETER'S AND QUEEN ELIZABETH'S HOSPITALS,
BRISTOL.

32, Old Market Street, Bristol,

Gentlemen,

September, 1850.

In answer to your inquiries respecting my experience of the application of Gutta Percha to Surgical purposes, permit me to say that I am quite delighted with it, and am decidedly of opinion that the introduction of this substance has conferred immense advantages upon the profession.

As a means of applying splints to fractures or dislocations, or to severe sprains requiring mechanical support, its excellencies are unrivalled. The facility with which it can be cut, moulded, or fashioned to suit our purposes completely sets the carpenter at nought, and enables us to save many valuable hours when called to casualties requiring immediate attention. To the Surgeon in country practice it is invaluable.

The thinnest Gutta Percha sheeting tissue is a most admirable application as a cover to the warm or cold water dressing, or as a protection to linen when using solutions of nitrate of silver, or other metallic or acid preparations as lotions, which would injure the texture or quality of our patients' vestments. I have used Gutta Percha as a lining to a cistern, with tubing of the same material to conduct the water into my dispensary—they answer admirably—at first some disagreeable flavour was communicated to the water, but it soon disappeared.

My plumber readily learnt the mode of managing it from your printed directions.

With respect to Gutta Percha, as an article to supply our wants instead of earthenware, I am sure it will only have to be known to be appreciated highly, no fractures can occur however roughly the utensils may be used. I am, Gentlemen,

Yours most obediently,

WILLIAM BIRD HERAPATH,

Surgeon to St. Peter's and Queen Elizabeth's Hospitals Bristol.
